When Raccoons Fall Through Your Ceiling is a heartwarming and hilarious memoir about the author's unexpected encounter with a family of raccoons that fell through her ceiling. The book is full of funny and heartwarming stories about the raccoons, as well as the author's reflections on the nature of human-animal relationships.

The author, a young woman named Sarah, was living in a small apartment in the city when she heard a loud crash in the middle of the night. She went to investigate and found a family of raccoons had fallen through her ceiling. The raccoons were scared and confused, and Sarah didn't know what to do. She called animal control, but they told her they couldn't help. So, Sarah decided to take matters into her own hands.

Sarah spent the next few days caring for the raccoons. She fed them, gave them water, and even built them a little den in her closet. The raccoons quickly warmed up to Sarah, and they soon became friends. Sarah even gave them names: Mama, Papa, and Baby.

As Sarah spent more time with the raccoons, she began to learn more about them. She learned that they were intelligent and curious creatures. She also learned that they were very social animals. Mama and Papa were very protective of Baby, and they would often cuddle up together in Sarah's closet.

Sarah's experience with the raccoons changed her life. She learned that animals are capable of great love and affection. She also learned that it's important to be compassionate towards all creatures, even those that we may not understand.

When Raccoons Fall Through Your Ceiling is a funny, heartwarming, and thought-provoking memoir about the unexpected power of animal encounters. It's a book that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
